

How the Canadiens, Bruins, Rangers, Blackhawks, Maple Leafs, and Red Wings Laid the Foundation for Modern Hockey

The National Hockey League (NHL) is the most popular professional hockey league in the world, and its teams have a long and storied history. Six teams in particular—the Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, Chicago Blackhawks, Toronto Maple Leafs, and Detroit Red Wings—have been especially influential in the development of the game. These teams have won a combined 55 Stanley Cups, and their players have helped to define the way hockey is played today.

The Canadiens were founded in 1909, and they are the oldest continuously operating team in the NHL. They have won a record 24 Stanley Cups, and their players have included some of the greatest names in hockey history, such as Maurice Richard, Guy Lafleur, and Jean Béliveau. The Canadiens have been a dominant force in the NHL for much of its history, and they have helped to popularize the game in Canada and around the world.
