Founded in 1989 by Bill and Patti Rogers, Spirit of Dream was born out of a profound desire to bring joy and hope to children battling life-threatening illnesses. Moved by the plight of their own daughter, who had been diagnosed with cancer, the Rogers family sought to create a sanctuary where sick children and their families could find respite from the relentless challenges they faced.

Armed with unwavering belief and an abundance of compassion, the Rogers family embarked on a mission to establish a camp where dreams could blossom amidst the trials and tribulations of illness. Thus, Camp Dream Street was born, a sprawling oasis nestled amidst the lush forests of Northern California.

A Haven of Healing: Camp Dream Street

Camp Dream Street is more than just a camp; it is a sanctuary, a place where children facing life-threatening illnesses can simply be children. Here, they are free to shed the burden of their illness and revel in the simple joys of childhood.

At Camp Dream Street, children engage in a myriad of activities designed to nurture their physical, emotional, and spiritual wellbeing. From horseback riding to arts and crafts, from archery to swimming, there is something for every child to enjoy. The camp also offers specialized programs tailored to the unique needs of children with specific illnesses, such as cancer, sickle cell anemia, and HIV.

Most importantly, Camp Dream Street provides a sense of community and belonging for children who may often feel isolated due to their illnesses. Here, they can connect with peers who understand their challenges and form lifelong bonds that transcend their time at camp.

Expanding the Dream: Beyond Camp Dream Street

While Camp Dream Street remains the cornerstone of Spirit of Dream's mission, the organization has expanded its reach far beyond the campgrounds. Recognizing that the needs of children facing life-threatening illnesses extend beyond the confines of summer camp, Spirit of Dream has developed a comprehensive suite of programs and services to support children and their families throughout their journey.

These programs include:

- In-hospital programs: Spirit of Dream provides a variety of in-hospital programs designed to bring joy and respite to children undergoing treatment. These programs include bedside visits from therapy dogs, arts and crafts activities, and music therapy.
- Community outreach: Spirit of Dream also offers community outreach programs that provide support and resources to families of children facing life-threatening illnesses. These programs include financial assistance, transportation services, and access to medical equipment.
- End-of-life care: Spirit of Dream provides compassionate end-of-life care for children who are facing the end of their lives. This care includes hospice care, bereavement support, and memory-making experiences.

The Spirit of Dream: A Tapestry of Resilience and Inspiration
