About the Exhibition

There and Back: Photographs From the Edge is a powerful and moving exhibition that explores the human cost of war and conflict. The exhibition features over 100 photographs by war photographer Tim Hetherington, taken over a period of 10 years in Afghanistan, Libya, and Liberia.

Hetherington's photographs are unflinching in their depiction of the horrors of war. They show the dead and the dying, the wounded and the maimed. They show the destruction of homes and communities, and the psychological scars of war.

But Hetherington's photographs are also more than just a record of the horrors of war. They are also a testament to the resilience of the human spirit. They show the courage and determination of those who have survived war, and the hope that they have for a better future.

About the Photographer

Tim Hetherington was a British war photographer who was killed in Libya in 2011. He was one of the most acclaimed war photographers of his generation, and his work has been published in major newspapers and magazines around the world.

Hetherington was known for his compassionate and empathetic approach to war photography. He believed that it was important to tell the stories of the people who are affected by war, and to show the human cost of conflict.

There and Back: Photographs From the Edge is a powerful and moving tribute to Tim Hetherington's life and work.

Exhibition Details

There and Back: Photographs From the Edge is on view at the Imperial War Museum in London from June 22, 2023 to January 8, 2024.
