Plot

The novel begins with the arrival of Uther Pendragon in Cornwall. Uther is a powerful warlord who has been sent by the High King to subdue the rebellious Cornish. Uther meets Igraine, the beautiful wife of the Duke of Cornwall, and is immediately smitten with her. Igraine is also attracted to Uther, but she is torn between her duty to her husband and her love for Uther. Uther and Igraine begin a secret affair, which soon leads to Igraine becoming pregnant with Uther's child. The Duke of Cornwall discovers the affair and is enraged. He banishes Igraine from his court and vows to kill Uther.

Uther and Igraine flee Cornwall and travel to the forest of Broceliande. They are pursued by the Duke of Cornwall and his men, but they are able to escape. In the forest, Uther and Igraine are met by Merlin, the wizard. Merlin tells Uther that he is destined to become the High King of Britain and that his son by Igraine will be the legendary King Arthur. Uther and Igraine are married, and they return to Cornwall to face the Duke of Cornwall. The Duke of Cornwall is defeated and killed, and Uther becomes the High King of Britain.
